INTRODUCTION

Up-to-date information on the sizes of the population at various administrative levels is very important for various purposes. This need is fulfilled by conducting a national population and housing census every ten years and using projected population figures for the periods in between. This report presents the July 1992 population estimates of the fourteen regions and of Asseb Administration and Addis Ababa. Apart from the regional estimates, it presents estimates of their awrajas, weredas and towns. The estimates of population sizes are obtained through projections of the results of the 1984 National Population and Housing Census and estimates for areas not covered during the census. The regions, awrajas and weredas presented in this report refer to boundaries that existed at the time of the census and not to the administrative and autonomous regions and their awrajas that were formed since then.

1. CONTENTS OF THE REPORT

The report presents the 1992 population estimates of each region, its awrajas, its weredas and towns classified by sex. Towns are mostly identified as areas in which Urban Dwellers Associations have been formed.

Most of the areas of the country (81 percent) were covered in the 1984 census. For areas not covered in the census, estimates were obtained from various other sources. The major areas that were not covered during the census are the rural areas of Tigray, Eritrea and the Ogaden and other nomadic areas in the country. For these areas estimates are presented only at awraja level and not at wereda level. The report does not present figures for towns that were not covered in the census and for which no other estimates could be obtained. In these cases the estimates for the rural areas also include the estimates of the urban areas of the respective weredas or awrajas.

The population estimates for each region are presented in separate tables. At the top of the table the population estimate of the whole region is presented classified into rural and urban areas. These estimates are provided by sex identified as M (for Males), F (for females) and T (for the total of both sexes). The tables then present the estimates for each awraja and the weredas within the awraja. The estimates for each wereda include the estimates for the rural areas of the wereda and the totals for all the towns in the wereda. Then all the towns in the wereda are presented together with their estimates. All the awrajas within each region, the weredas within the awraja and the towns within the wereda are presented alphabetically.

The report presents summary figures of the regional population estimates for each year from 1992-1995 (Tables 1-4). It then presents the estimates for each of the 14 regions, Asseb Administration and Addis Ababa in Tables 5-20.

In the annex of the report the estimated age distribution of the national population of 1992 is presented (Annex Table 1). This distribution indicates the proportion of the population expected in each of the five year age groups and the proportion of the population in selected ages. These are the proportion of infants below one year, elementary school age population of 7-12 years, junior high school age population of 13-14 years, senior high school age population of 15-18 years, the working age population of 10 years and above, population eligible for voting of 18 years and above, population eligible to run for election of 21 years and above and women of child bearing ages of 15-49 years. Multiplication of the estimated population size by the proportions mentioned above provides estimated population sizes that satisfy the above criteria. For example the 1992 estimate for those aged five to nine years in the rural parts of Arssi Region can be obtained as 0.1692 x 952,100 = 161,095. Similarly females aged five to nine in the town of Angetu in Bale Region can be obtained as 0.1265 x 358 = 45. The report also presents the 1992 estimated population sizes according to the twenty five administrative and five autonomous regions (Annex Table 2). At the end of the report a map of the country which indicates the boundaries of the regions, weredas and awrajas is presented.

2. HOW TO PREPARE PROJECTIONS FOR 1993-1995

This report presents projected figures for towns, weredas and awrajas for 1992 only. However any interested user can easily prepare projections which refer to any of the years from 1993 to 1995. The methodology for the projections is described below by using the example of preparing the 1993 projections for Arssi Region.

a) The data needed to prepare the projections are the 1993 and 1992 population estimates of Arssi Region classified into rural and urban areas and by sex (Tables 1 and 2).

b) "Weights" are obtained for the rural males of Arssi by dividing the 1993 estimates of males in the rural areas, by the estimates for males in the rural areas for 1992. This procedure is followed for the females in the rural areas, males in the urban areas and females in the urban areas to obtain their respective weights.

c) Multiply the 1992 figures (Table 5) by their respective weights to obtain the 1993 estimates.

d) The separate estimates obtained for males and females are added up to provide estimates for both sexes. Similarly the sum of the estimates for the rural and urban areas provides the total for that area.

Example The estimated figure for the rural areas of " Asseko " wereda of Arssi region will be:

Rural Males (987,400 ÷ 958,300) x 26,511 = 27,316

Rural Females (981,000 ÷ 952,100) x 25,312 = 26,080

Asseko Wereda rural population, both sexes 53,396

The estimated 1993 figure for the town of " Asseko " in Arssi region will be:

Asseko town, Males (114,900 ÷ 108,100) x 732 = 778

Asseko town, Females (125,600 ÷ 118,700)x 878 = 929

Asseko town, both sexes 1,707

Similarly to obtain population estimates for any area for the year 1994, weights are obtained by dividing population figures of 1994 (Table 3) by the 1992 population figures (Table 1) and multiplying the 1992 population estimates of that area given in this report. For example the 1994 population estimate for males in rural Asseko wereda will be (1,017,400 ÷ 958,300) x 26,511 = 28,146

3. LIMITATIONS OF THE PROJECTED FIGURES

The accuracy of the projections are dependent on the accuracy of the base population and the validity of the assumptions made. The base population used for making the projection, for most areas, was obtained from the results of the 1984 population census. However, for those areas that were not covered in the census the base population was obtained from various other sources. These were particularly severe in the rural areas of Tigray and Eritrea and nomadic areas, such as the Ogaden. No estimate is presented for urban centers that have not been covered during the census, and for which no other estimate could be obtained.

The projection methodology used in this report assumes similar rates of growth for all the urban centers in a region. However, problems may arise because of unexpected changes that have occured in particular areas. Some urban centers may have suffered changes different from the rest of the other urban centers in the region because of the war, and other economic conditions. The projection also assumes uniform growth in all the rural areas of each region which may not be valid because of the above conditions. The report does not present any population figures about new urban centers that have been formed since the conduct of the 1984 census.

The projection made adjustments for changes that have occurred due to the massive resettlement program that occurred in the country. The data for this adjustment was obtained from the population and Housing Census of the Resettlement areas that was conducted by the office in May, 1988. However, some return migration has occurred since then and it was not possible to obtain figures on the magnitude and direction of this movement. Thus it was not possible to make adjustment for this return migration.
